

The University of Birmingham Medical School

Implemented Activities

As part of our original application, which had overlap with other institutions' applications, was to produce a series of short films to promote research careers, support research skills and the research career pathway, we decided to work as a part of a consortium led by the University of Cambridge. The result of this was that we were to have input into developing a national research database (Medidem) and to provide some short video podcasts to support this initiative.

The Academic Medical CV video aims to provide both advice and guidance in relation to preparing the best CV possible to maximise student's chances when applying for opportunities:
